Join us for the 31st International Congress of The Transplantation Society (TTS 2026) and connect with the leading global transplantation community!

Over 3,000 participants, including clinicians, scientists, trainees, and allied health professionals from diverse backgrounds around the world will gather in Sydney, Australia from September 20 to 23, 2026, for a four-day journey of scientific exchange. TTS is a global organization with over 5,000 members from 105 countries and TSANZ counts over 660 members from 8 countries. Together, we look forward to hosting many of our members at TTS 2026, whether it be in-person or virtually.

State-of-the-art lectures, plenaries, workshops, oral presentations, poster sessions and many affiliated program components will stimulate deep discussions on the latest research in all areas of transplantation. A well-curated list of renowned experts will be invited to present, ensuring the highest quality and most relevant insights for all attendees.

Our strong commitment to our industry partners is to create a variety of personalized solutions to build brand awareness, strengthen existing connections, and enhance their profiles by creating valuable educational and networking opportunities. Additionally, we aim to facilitate quality contacts with hundreds of transplant professionals and key opinion leaders expected at TTS 2026.

The success of our Congress is largely due to the support of our industry partners. Your commitment to education enables us to bring these programs to life and make them accessible, especially to trainees, allied health professionals, and participants from low-resourced settings.

Please join the international transplant community to contribute to the most important reason why we are all here – to improve the lives of patients who need life-saving transplants.

Together, we can make a significant impact on the world of transplantation.

John J. Fung

Founded in 1966, The Transplantation Society (TTS) is a Non-Governmental Organization (NGO) in official relations with the World Health Organization, and is composed of some 5700+ professionals including but not limited to, physicians, surgeons, scientists and allied health professionals in 106 countries.

TTS is regarded as the only truly international medical society in the field which serves the entire community through its work promoting the advancement and development of both the science and clinical practice of transplantation, through scientific communication, continuing education of its membership and guidance on the ethical practice of transplantation.

Over the past two decades TTS has added ten official sections specializing in various areas of transplantation as well as collaborate with an exceptional group of affiliated societies. This synergistic relationship provides a platform for advocacy, open collaboration and exchange of knowledge and experiences. TTS looks forward to further developing and cultivating these relationships, not only with our existing sections and affiliates, but with other great societies with a similar global vision of transplantation.
